If you can't win the trick in second seat, play a low card. Even if you can win the trick, it is still correct most of the time to play low to give partner a chance to win the trick. If in doubt play low! THIRD HAND HIGH Even if you can't win the trick, you should play high. You may set up winners for your partner. When playing 3rd hand high with equally high cards, play the lowest of the equal cards (see 'Win a Trick As Cheaply As Possible).

How To Play Bridge

There are only three ways of winning a trick: playing a high card; leading a "skater" trumping (also called ruffing) There are also plays that don't win tricks immediately, but that do increase your chances of winning future tricks. The techniques for winning tricks are basic to all aspects of playing bridge. You must get more than "pretty good" at them.
