New compilation of Russian synonyms - essential reference for undergraduates, teachers and language professionals.

This book provides an in-depth, structured learning guide to the vocabulary of Russian.

This book explores the puzzling phenomenon of new veiling practices among lower middle class women in Cairo, Egypt. Although these women are part of a modernizing middle class, they also voluntarily adopt a traditional symbol of female subordination. How can this paradox be explained? An explanation emerges which reconceptualizes what appears to be reactionary behavior as a new style of political struggle--as accommodating protest. These women, most of them clerical workers in the large government bureaucracy, are ambivalent about working outside the home, considering it a change which brings new burdens as well as some important benefits. At the same time they realize that leaving home and family is creating an intolerable situation of the erosion of their social status and the loss of their traditional identity. The new veiling expresses women's protest against this. MacLeod argues that the symbolism of the new veiling emerges from this tense subcultural dilemma, involving elements of both resistance and acquiescence.

Russian writer Leo Tolstoy created a realistic masterpiece in "Anna Karenina," utilizing allegory and symbol to an extent and at a level of sophistication unknown in his other works. Browning's study identifies and analyzes previously unnoticed or only briefly mentioned "linkages and keystones" arising from Anna Karenina's momentous train ride and peasant nightmares, and allegories rooted in Vronsky's disastrous steeplechase.

This book presents a systematic approach to understanding the patterns and alternations in the sounds and structure of Russian.
